UKLA BOOK AWARDS THE SHORTLISTS 2020

The shortlists have been announced for the 2020 UKLA Book Awards, the only national book awards which are judged by teachers. This year's teacher judges are from Oxfordshire and Renfrewshire and produced what UKLA are calling their 'most diverse lists ever', with small imprints dominating the selections in each of the four categories. The criteria for the new category of Information Books 3- 14+, also sought creative non-fiction from a 'diverse range of voices and perspectives' where issues and themes are represented 'inter-culturally and with equality'.

The judging process uniquely includes assessing the impact of the books within the classroom and the student's response to them.

For UKLA, giving classroom practitioners the opportunity to read high quality new children?s books is as important as finding an overall winner. Research carried out by members of UKLA (Cremin et al 2008) clearly demonstrated the links between teachers? knowledge of children?s books and the likelihood of pupils becoming successful readers. Despite this evidence, teachers are seldom given time to read new books or funding to purchase them when they do. Chair of the Book Awards, Chris Lockwood, said, ?It was a pleasure to work with such a committed, creative and insightful group of teacher judges. They have chosen some outstanding titles which will make the final selection in June extremely difficult, because all of these books are potential winners of our award.?

12 teachers nominated from the 70 involved in the shortlisting will now form the final judging panel and have the challenging task of reading all the shortlisted books in all categories. Plans for the final judging meeting have had to adapt to the constraints imposed by the Covid-19 epidemic and similarly the winner?s announcement will be postponed until later in the year. A date and venue will be announced as soon as possible.
