First published ten years ago, these titles about episodes from the life of toddler Tom and his toy monkey, Pippo have been reissued as small, square board books. Aspects of the relationships between Tom, his comfort object and his parents are shown through the uneventful happenings of the toddler day.

Small pencil drawings, supporting and sometimes extending the text, appear at the top of each left-hand page - the text leads in turn to the full-colour right-hand page taking the eye from left to right in preparation for (much-later) reading.

Their episodic nature makes these books work best as a set, so that the reader becomes familiar with the characters. Toddler life and emotions are gently and humorously shown, and Daddy has a higher profile than is usual in books of this type.
