A really meaty story by Dick King-Smith at his best. Young Tod Golightly is following in his dead father's footsteps to become a highwayman - with a difference: his accomplices are a donkey, a dog, a magpie and a ferret. Together they carry out a daring robbery. Tom is caught and sure to hang, but he's saved by a parson who's impressed with his goodness. Somehow Dick King-Smith has made an eighteenth-century picaresque novel for Juniors and Tony Robinson provides a dramatic presentation enabling it all to unfold in the mind's eye.
